

Print ArticlePrint This Story

Builder 'university' salutes its first class of graduates

From press release

In January of 2008, the Lake Norman Home Builders Association (LNHBA) announced a partnership with the North Carolina Builder Institute (NCBI) and Mitchell Community College-Mooresville campus to launch the LNHBA University to offer on going continuing education opportunities in the building industry.

One year later, the LNHBA is honoring its first class of graduates who received their Accredited Associate, Builder and Master Builder designations, which is recognized by the NC General Contractors Licensing Board. The public can view the accreditation information online at www.nclbgc.org.

The LNHBA University offers an intensive series of classes whereby participants learn the newest trends and technology in the building industry. They can collaborate with fellow builders and associates to find solutions to the many everyday challenges encountered in the industry. To maintain current designations, graduates must complete an additional eight hours annually.

Congratulations to the following LNHBA members who have completed 48 to 112 credit hours of NCBI approved curriculum and received the following designations.

Accredited Associate:

Sandra Wallace, LNHBA

Accredited Builder:

David White, White House Builders

Joseph Dellinger, LC Dellinger Building

Master Builder Designation:

Geoffrey Bowen, EFC Builders

Jarrett Davis, Structures of Integrity

Nicole Goolsby, Rion Homes

Robert Mihaljevic, Mihaljevic Construction

Robert Zarnoch, Legacy Builders of Lake Norman, LLC