

TIMESNEWS

Enrollment, impact fees lower than expected

Fort Mill School District growth may be slowing down

	E-Mail this story		Print this story
	Subscribe to the Times		Advertise in the Times

By Shawn Cetrone
 (Published September 19, 2008)

FORT MILL TOWNSHIP — After years of surging growth, Fort Mill schools started classes last month with fewer new students than expected.

School officials say it may signal that the district’s traditionally robust growth is cooling, and the slow economy could be a factor. The district had estimated 9,578 new students would show up for class this fall. As of the 10th day of school, 9,421 students were enrolled.

ADVERTISEMENT

That’s 568 students more than the district ended classes with last school year, or about a 6 percent rate of growth. It follows two school years each in which Fort Mill schools had 10 percent surges in enrollment.

“It’s a little lower than we thought,” Assistant Superintendent Chuck Epps told Fort Mill school board members this month. “This is probably the first year ... we haven’t had to add teachers in eight or nine years after school started.”

School districts use enrollment numbers from days during the first month of classes to evaluate whether more staff is needed. “It’s better to be under by a little bit, so you don’t hire more than you need,” Epps said.

School officials say the current drop off in growth might signal a slowdown in the number of newcomers flocking to Fort Mill. Another indicator of that, officials say, is a sudden drop in revenue last month from impact fees.

Fort Mill is the only district in South Carolina that still charges the fees, which amount to $2,500 per new housing unit. Developers generally pass the cost on to home buyers. The school district uses the money to build new facilities.

In July, Fort Mill received $230,000 in impact fees, an amount similar to what it had received in the previous months. In August, however, the amount dropped sharply, to just $57,500.

“It’ll be interesting to watch those over the next several months to see if this is a trend,” Superintendent Keith Callicutt said. A slowdown in enrollment growth might not be a bad thing, because it could give the district time to catch up to the booming student population it has experienced in recent years, Epps said.

“It’s like a breath of fresh air,” he said. “We felt like we could loosen our belt a little.”

More Stories...

Local

-  Video shows Lindemann struggling with sobriety test - (09/19/08)
-  Enrollment, impact fees lower than expected - (09/19/08)
-  City offers free golf for good grades - (09/17/08)
-  Tega Cay’s LakeShore complete - (09/17/08)

Local

-  Enrollment, impact fees lower than expected - (09/19/08)
-  City offers free golf for good grades - (09/17/08)

Education

-  In Our Schools - September 17, 2008 - (09/16/08)

Wrecks near high school spur traffic study - (09/16/08)

-  Police blotter - September 17, 2008 - (09/16/08)
-  Tega Cay move ahead with park plans - (09/16/08)
-  INSPIRED: Fort Mill area artists at work - (09/16/08)
-  Tega Cay clamps down on rentals - (09/16/08)
-  Fallen tree in Fort Mill will be laughing matter - (09/16/08)
-  PET OF THE WEEK: Daisy Mae Bernstein - (09/16/08)
-  BRING YOUR APPETITE: Barbeue and bluegrass at ASCG - (09/16/08)
-  Free health care for kids available - (09/16/08)
-  County wants progress on Morningstar's tower plan - (09/16/08)
-  This Side Up - September 17, 2008 - (09/16/08)
-  Lancaster County tax hike less than expected - (09/16/08)
-  Property owners want to be brought into Fort Mill's town limits - (09/16/08)
-  Spending's up, but no new taxes in Tega Cay or Fort Mill - (09/16/08)
-  Memorial held for Travis Nell - (09/16/08)
-  This Week in History - September 17, 2008 - (09/16/08)
-  Pink Ladies planning bash for breast cancer cause - (09/16/08)
-  Long picks up funding edge in House District 45 race - (09/16/08)
-  Fort Mill Town Council Ward 2 race set - (09/16/08)
-  Lancaster tax hike less than expected - (09/12/08)
-  Carowinds expands with 12th roller coaster - (09/10/08)

Sports

-  Indian Land trounced by Pageland - (09/16/08)

Nation

-  Desmond Tutu to speak at UNC in 2009 - (09/22/08)

World

-  Former foreign minister heads Japan's ruling party - (09/22/08)